

Process Safety Management Statement

Storengy UK is committed to ensuring that its operational facilities are well designed, safely operated, appropriately inspected, and well maintained.

Guiding Principles

Storengy UK Ltd recognises there are significant risks associated with its operations and is committed to ensuring these risks are identified, managed, and mitigated, as far as reasonably practicable.

Storengy UK Ltd will minimise the probability of a major incident through strong process safety leadership, fostering of a positive process safety culture, robust risk management processes and continuous improvement.

Storengy UK Ltd will deliver excellence in Process Safety by:

- Having an operational UK Management Team who are trained in, accountable for, and are visible in, the promotion of process safety.
- Having an Operations Team who are committed to the implementation of process safety and have a clear understanding of their responsibilities.
- Actively engaging with the Storengy UK workforce to promote process safety and deliver a positive culture.
- Identifying and assessing process safety hazards and risks.
- Ensuring robust operational processes are in place:
 - Operating manuals and procedures.
 - Process and operational status and handover.
 - Management of operational interfaces.
 - Standards and safe working practices.
 - Management of Change.
 - Operational readiness and start up.
 - Emergency preparedness.
 - Inspection and Maintenance.
 - Management of Safety Critical Devices.
 - Work Control, Permit to Work and task risk management.
 - Contractor and Supplier selection and management.
- Ensuring that the integrity of our assets is maintained by understanding deterioration mechanisms and following thorough inspection and maintenance routines.
- Regularly monitoring and publishing of Process Safety Performance Indicators (PSPI's).
- Operating a review process to capture the learning from both internal and external incidents.
- Delivering a programme of continuous improvement, through audit and management review.
